

HARRY SECOMBE
in
"Saturday Spectacular"

32

HARRY SECOMBE

Birthplace: Wales

Hair: Dark brown

Eyes: Brown

Hobbies: Reading, photography, sketching, modelling

Harry Secombe joined the Army at 17 and rose to the dizzy rank of lance bombardier. After demob he was auditioned by Vivien Van Damm and appeared at the Windmill Theatre. Making television shows as early as 1947 he appeared in "Variety Bandbox" and "Welsh Rarebit." Teaming up later with his Army pals Spike Milligan and Etonians Michael Bentine and Peter Sellers in the "Goon Show" helped to spread his fame. His powerful tenor voice enabled him to make recordings of popular operatic arias which are selling consistently well. He is today a top attraction in the theatre, television, radio and films.

WHO-Z-AT STAR?

Which Canadian actor and dancer is a co-producer and choreographer for the B.B.C.?

See Card No. 40